

The Summer Time 'Read and Write' Challenge!

During the Holidays, don't let reading and writing skills slip! Use the chart below to help you: there are enough tasks here to do a different one each day of the holidays or you can save them up for a rainy day and do a few at a time!

READ outside in the sun	WRITE a postcard to yourself - and send it	READ to someone older than you	WRITE a haiku diary entry	READ something non-fiction	WRITE a letter to someone you don't see	READ something a friend has already read
WRITE a story with yourself as the main character	READ somewhere unusual of your own choice	WRITE about your best summer memory	READ instead of getting bored	WRITE about the way today's weather makes you feel	READ a magazine or newspaper	WRITE a list of songs for the soundtrack of the movie of your life
READ under the covers	WRITE a reminder list	READ aloud and 'do the voices'!	WRITE a description of a made-up place	READ something someone recommends to you	WRITE a note to someone in your family	READ an old favourite
WRITE about dream you remember	READ about somewhere you've never been	WRITE about somewhere you've visited	READ something you choose for yourself	WRITE a top ten list of food, songs, places, people	READ something set in the future	WRITE For ten minutes without stopping to think
READ when travelling somewhere	WRITE about where you would most like to live	READ to someone younger than you	WRITE about the view from your window	READ something that rhymes	WRITE a description of an imaginary person	READ about somewhere you've been
WRITE three wishes (choose wisely!)	READ something twice as long as you'd usually read	WRITE a set of instructions for a game you've invented	READ something a family member liked when they were your age	WRITE a thank you note to someone	READ an old favourite	WRITE about the best time of the day
READ before you get out of bed	WRITE a list of things you can see, hear and smell	READ instead of going on-line	WRITE a text message to a friend you haven't seen this summer	READ something written a long time ago	WRITE Some new term promises for yourself	READ instead of watching TV

Hand in your challenge sheet in the new term to Mrs Pickering (Literacy Co-ordinator) for a prize!
